Transfer a .mz domain from CIUEM: step by step

Domains & DNS Created on August 16, 2026 Updated on October 22, 2026 2 min read

Many Mozambican companies registered their domain directly with CIUEM and, over time, want to move it to a provider that handles everything in one place - domain, hosting and e-mail. That is possible, and the site does not go down while it happens.

What you gain

1. Renewals and hosting on the same invoice and in the same panel, instead of separate processes.
2. Immediate DNS management from the panel, without requesting changes by e-mail.
3. Automatic expiry notices - the most common reason a domain is lost is simply that nobody noticed the date.

How to request it

1. Check that the registrant details held by CIUEM are correct and that you can read the contact e-mail. Without that, the transfer cannot be confirmed.
2. Order the transfer through the site and pay the invoice: it is one year of renewal, added to the expiry date the domain already has (how to transfer a domain).
3. Get the EPP code from the current registrar (CIUEM or the provider where the domain is). Minutes after paying, we e-mail you asking for it: paste it on the transfer page and we'll send the request.
4. While it runs, the site and e-mail keep working - nothing is switched off during a transfer.

Do this before the domain is close to expiring.

A transfer requested at the last minute may not complete in time, and an expired domain is far harder (and more expensive) to recover than to transfer.

Not sure where it is registered?

Check the official whois at whois.nic.mz, or send us the domain and we'll check.
