Sitejet Builder or WordPress: which one suits your site

WordPress & CMS Created on September 16, 2026 Updated on October 18, 2026 2 min read

Both are in your hosting plan's cPanel and neither requires code. The difference is in what each one can do and how much work it takes afterwards.

In brief

	Sitejet Builder	WordPress
How you build	Drag and drop, in the browser	WordPress dashboard, with themes and plugins
Where it opens	cPanel › Domains › Sitejet Builder	One-click installer in cPanel
Database	Not used	Uses a MySQL database
Updates	The published site is ready-made files: no plugins to update in the account	WordPress, the theme and plugins need regular updates
Several languages	Built into the builder	Via a plugin
Forms	Built in, sent by e-mail	Via a plugin
Shop with payments	Not the route we document	WooCommerce - see the shop with local payments
Custom features	What the builder offers	Thousands of plugins

Choose Sitejet Builder if…

1. You want the site online quickly and to build it yourself.

2. It is a presentation site: company, services, portfolio, event.
3. You do not want to deal with updates.

To start: getting started with Sitejet Builder.

Choose WordPress if...

1. You need a shop that takes payments.
2. You need a specific feature only a plugin provides.
3. You already know WordPress or have someone to maintain it.

To start: how to install WordPress in a few clicks. Then, straight away, protect the WordPress login.

What is the same in both

They live on the same plan, with the same domain, the same e-mail, the free SSL certificate and our daily backups.

Do not put both in the same folder:
Publishing from the builder replaces the files in the domain's folder - including a WordPress install that is there. One per domain or subdomain: see a builder site and another site on the same plan.

Where to see it in your account

To know whether your account has Sitejet Builder, open cPanel and look in the Domains section for the Sitejet Builder icon. If it is there, you can start straight away. If it is not, tell us and we will check your plan with you.

Whichever you choose, the plan's site count applies: Pro has 1 site, Plus 6, and Ultra and the Business plans have unlimited sites. WordPress also needs a database, and databases are unlimited on every plan.
